Looking for something different?Von Mystery ReaderI picked up this book after thoroughly enjoying Barbara's other books.Although this is completely different to what she usually writes her wonderful sense of humour shines through.I have to take my hat off to Barbara for having the stamina and patience to even begin such a project, let alone managing to interview 527 men! What an insightful read. It was great to see the character flaws and the numerous over-inflated egos she had to deal with during the course of this project. The old adage: Women are from Venus and men are from Mars seems to be spot on, as you'll discover during the course of the book. Well done, Barbara for giving the world something different and insightful to sample.

Kurzbeschreibung Meet author, Barbara Silkstone, who traveled the country for six years armed only with a tape recorder and a quirky sense of humor, listening to men talk about women, love, commitment, and male hopes and fears. Women will enjoy this book for the insight it gives them into the male mind. Men will immediately compare themselves with the men who opened their hearts to the Love Investigator. Both genders will gain a new and often humorous perspective on the opposite sex. This is a work of True Fiction. Barbara is able to capture how men constantly wrestle their inner demons. Even if he's the model spouse, he is not immune to the thoughts and desires that afflict every man. Scott Kudia, Ph.D Relationship Expert
