KurzbeschreibungA drone attack turns Mecca into rubble. The most sacred place for Muslims everywhere is no more; a clash of civilizations ensues. Hans Wahler, a university professor, leads us through the concepts of a new focus on human society: Ethology, the science of animal behavior, makes perfect sense when applied to the human kind.His struggle with his tormented past seems to have led him to this moment. Born again after an inner crisis, he is now able to add that grain of sand that tips the scales. His stubborn efforts to understand what makes humans tick will enable him to predict the behavior of terrorist groups like Al Qaeda and ISIL, born of the animal urge for dominance.Will this understanding make it possible for us to stop the ticking bomb or are we headed to World War 3? The boy who cried wolf may still save the dayKurzbeschreibungA drone attack turns Mecca into rubble. The most sacred place for Muslims everywhere is no more; a clash of civilizations ensues.
