CotoBecause the killer is turning tricks into corpses, theyve nicknamed her Trixie. Trixie is baiting and taunting Seattle PD Detective Morton (Mort) Grant with notes. Shes enjoying the press enjoying the attention. She has a distinctive MO her targets are strangled; tied with a rope; kneeling on crushed mothballs; and have a very red kiss placed on their forehead. Only some of these details are made known to the press. The Fixer (Lydia) from book 1 is also involved in this story, but shes not working on the Trixie case with Mort. She has discovered a lonely little girl in the library. After talking to the librarian, Lydia discovers she spends almost every day in the library but very few days in school. She befriends Maizie Dunfield.

Lydia gradually discovers that the child's father is Maizie's living nightmare. The Red Hot Fix is definitely a dual story line. I kept waiting for the two stories to connect. They didn't. However, I found that Mort's investigation of Trixie and Lydia's probing into Maizie's situation to both be very thought-provoking. I actually had more of an interest in Lydia and Maizie's story even though it was not primary. Some reviews say the books in this series can be read as standalones. I did, however, feel like I was missing valuable information by reading book two before book one. Not sure why I read out of order except that the blurb for The Red Hot Fix made me very curious. The characters were interesting and real and I do plan to go back to the beginning of this series. I rated The Red Hot Fix at 4 out of 5.

KurzbeschreibungIn the white-knuckle follow-up to her explosive debut novel, The Fixer, T. E. Woods returns with another tense, intricate thriller. What do you say, Morton Grant, Chief of Detectives? You got what it takes to find me? Show me a move. . . . Or I'll have to show you one of mine. A little more than a year after the Fixer killings, Detective Mort Grant of the Seattle PD once again has his hands full. In the last four months, seven men have been murdered in seedy pay-by-the-hour motels: first strangled, then tied with rope and set on a bed of crushed mothballs, with a red lipstick kiss planted on their foreheads. Speculation abounds that the killer is a prostitute who's turning her tricks into dead men. The press has taken to calling her Trixie. As Mort follows scant leads in the case, he can't help but feel continued guilt over his involvement with the Fixer. Though the public holds her up as a folk hero, a vigilante who seeks justice when the system fails, Mort cannot shake the fact that serious crimes have been committed. And though legend says she has vanished, Mort knows exactly where the Fixer is and he's conspiring to keep her hidden. As Trixie strikes again, Mort suddenly finds himself and his family in the crosshairs. Because these new murders are not random, and their perpetrator is hell-bent on luring Mort into a sick and twisted game. If he's not careful, he's going to need Fixing.
